Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juice of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol digests does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy relieves all stomach troubles by stimulating, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the natural juices of the stomach.

A ROUND OF TALK.

The Change.

Before she went to board'n' school she'd somer an' play. She drove the cows from the field an' helped take in the hay. But she don't do that any more, because of this you see— She went away as Mary Jane an' came back Jeanne Marie.

She uster wear made-over clothes, an' always with a smile. But now her dresses every one must be the latest style.

She don't ride bareback any more, nor climb the apple tree— She went away as Mary Jane, but came back Jeanne Marie.

Her hair is all in crinkles now—she calls 'em Marshall waves. She's up in all the etiquette, real stylish she behaves.

Her ma and me are mighty proud o' all she's learned—but gee, We sometimes wish for Mary Jane (titled o' Jeanne Marie).

—Mrs. Elsie Duncan Yale in the September Women's Home Companion.

JUST NOT TREAT—There is no telling where this reform wave which is sweeping over Kentucky will lead to nor when it will end. An election contest was brought on down in Owen county on the grounds that J. H. Jackson the successful candidate in a Democratic primary for Representative treated his constituents to Coca Cola. The Owen Democrat tells of the contest as follows: "A very close and hard fight was made on giving Jackson the nomination in the committee. Charges were preferred against him by James Kemper, of Poplar Grove, who said Mr. Jackson electioneered by treating the voters on Coca Cola on election day. Under the call the candidates were forbidden from using whisky, money or anything of value to secure votes and Mr. Kemper claimed that voters in his precinct were influenced to vote for Mr. Jackson on account of his use of Coca Cola. The fight waxed warm and when the vote was taken Mr. Jackson was declared the nominee by a vote of five to four, so he had a close call in the committee as well as in the general election."

LEAN SWEET—The success of the American Society of Equity in pooling the 1907 crop of tobacco in this county has been remarkable under the circumstances. In spite of the fact that the 1906 which has been pooled is still unsold with the selling day still in the dim, distant future, the farmers have gone ahead and pledged their growing crop to the pool. It is estimated that the acreage in tobacco in Washington county this year will amount to between 3,100 and 3,200 acres. Of it has been practically all of it has been pledged to the pool. Oontr President Wm. Nally is authority for the statement that there are only 161 acres of growing tobacco in the county which has not been pledged to the American Society. This as we said in the beginning, is a remarkable showing under the circumstances. With the 1906 crop still tied up and some of the farmers getting restless for their money it is a severe test of faith on the part of the growers to come forward and almost to a man pledge another year's crop. As we have often remarked in this column before if the tobacco pooling movement does not prove a success it will not be the fault of the growers. They have certainly always responded nobly when called on.

FARMERS INSTITUTE—Farmers of this county would do well to take an interest in the Farmers Institute which is to be here September 15th and 16th, under the auspices of the State Board of Agriculture. This department is one that is calculated to be of real benefit to the farmer if he will only avail himself of the opportunity to attend these institutes and partake of the knowledge which is so freely dispensed. Several competent and well informed instructors on various subjects pertaining to farming and stock raising will be on hand and there is no farmer we venture to say, in this county, no matter how wise he is who cannot learn something of value from these lecturers. Farming has gotten to be recognized as a science and the modern farmer can lose nothing by taking advantage of all the information he is allowed access to. The Farmers' Institute here (on September 15th to 19th) should be well attended.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by Haydon & Robertson Drugists, 50c.

Marce Henri Sees a Star of Hope.

"Fortunately for once the Republicans lured by the living hope raised by these Democratic dissensions, have put up a good ticket, so that in case the Lord's Anointed fail to establish the New Jerusalem in the City Hall, we need not tremble lest Grinstead & Company walk away with it."

So writes Mr. Watterson in the Courier Journal of yesterday. Nothing need be added to this frank admission that Louisville's hope lies with the election of the Republican ticket. We would merely remark that Grinstead & Company have no intention of walking away with either the City Hall. They propose to leave each in its proper place, and merely to occupy the latter in the interests of honest, able and efficient government.—Herald.

A New Law.

What would our people think if the law provided for a fine of $100 for anyone guilty of selling a spoiled egg? The new Iowa pure food law is very strict, and one of the provisions make it a $100 fine to sell a bad egg. The farmers who bring in a lot of eggs that are over ripe and sell them at fresh egg prices cannot plead that the "children" gathered them and may accidentally put in some that were not very fresh. Any kind of an old tried out egg will not count any more in the State of Iowa.

Electric Railway.

Mr. C. J. Perkins, of the General Electric Company, of Schenectady, New York, is in Danville this week, having come at the solicitation of the Danville Traction Company for the purpose of making an estimate on the probable cost of building and equipping a street railway in Danville, running from the depot to Second street. Mr. Perkins says that many towns smaller than Danville are supporting electric lines, and that in his opinion such an enterprise here would prove highly profitable.

It is said that the line at Somerset is paying $100 per day, and Danville is certainly a better and more wealthy town than Somerset. Fifteen or twenty dollars per day will pay the operating expenses on one line, so that the undertaking would appear to be a perfectly safe investment. Col. Jenkins, the popular general manager of the traction company, announced positively this morning that a street car line would be in operation as soon as the first of November, 1908. With a new city hall, new government building, new buildings at Centre College and Caldwell College liberally enlarged, Danville would present the appearance of an ideal community.—Danville Advocate.

Do It Be Blue

and lose all interest when help is in reach. Herbie will make that liver perform its duties properly. J. B. Vaughn, Elba, Ala., writes, "Being a constant sufferer from constipation and a disordered liver, I have found Herbie to be the best medicine, for these troubles, on the market. I have used it constantly. I believe it to be the best medicine of its kind, and I wish all sufferers from these troubles to know the good Herbie has done me. Sold by the Red Cross Drug Store.

Clifton Sold.

Clifton, one of the most successful show and hand-somest show horses in America was purchased Saturday at a private price from Major David Castleman, of Clifton farm, this county, by Major H. L. Ripley, U. S. A., of the department of Texas. Major Ripley had been in Fayette county for several days looking over the farms with a view to purchasing a premium saddle stallion, and after looking over all the horses in Central Kentucky selected Clifton as the most desirable for his purposes. Clifton is the stallion that Major Castleman had matched in the endurance race with Homer Davenport's Arabian stallion in the trip across the United States from the Pacific to the Atlantic. This famous race was called off, however owing to an illness of Mr. Davenport's stallion. Major Ripley was at Major Castleman's stock farm, last Thursday and Friday and in order to give him an idea of the value of the American saddle-bred stallion Major Castleman drove Major Ripley over to the Danville fair. This trip closed the deal as Major Ripley found that Clifton was perfect in his gait. The stallion will remain at Clifton stud for the time being.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Endorsed By The County.

"The most popular remedy in Otsego county, and the best friend of my family," writes Wm. M. Dietz, editor and publisher of the Otsego Journal, Gilbertsville, N. Y., "is Dr. King's New Discovery. It has proved to be infallible cure for coughs and colds, making short work of the worst of them. We always keep a bottle in the house. I believe it to be the most valuable prescription known for Lung and Throat diseases." Guaranteed to never disappoint the taker by Haydon & Robertson's Drug Store. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Rapidly Maturing Plans.

The State Board of Agriculture, which recently purchased the Douglas Park Jockey Club at Louisville for permanent grounds and buildings for the Kentucky State Fair, has not been able to close negotiations because the Title Company employed to clear the title and guarantee it has found that a part of the land bought has been dedicated to public uses, and, therefore, there may be some trouble in closing the road-ways; at least there will be a delay of a few months. In the meantime, the board has asked the owners of Douglas Park to lease them the grounds for holding this year's fair with the understanding that as soon as the title is cleared, the property will be taken over by the State Board. This, Mr. Cella, has declined to do, it is understood, although, there is a probability of the matter being adjusted within the next day or two. The State Board is determined that it will not take over the property until the title is perfect.

Danville People Will Have It

The local option law which worked effectively in Danville for several months has lost its weight in view of a recent decision of the Court of Appeals. That tribunal holds that an individual may have shipped into a local option community as much liquor as he pleases provided the same comes from a foreign State and is gotten for private use. Mr. George Mahan, the drayman, and other citizens whose business require their presence in the Danville freight yards, state that from one to three car loads of beer are received here each week. Mr. Mahan says that it required the services of two men to deliver the beer that came last Saturday to the citizens of Danville and locality. A considerable quantity also comes in by express and otherwise, so that it is safe to say that two car loads are received weekly. Mr. Mahan has had numerous requests to deliver beer, but he is a law-abiding citizen and refuses lest he conflict with the laws of the commonwealth. Most of the beer comes from Cincinnati. Now the question is "Can Mr. Mahan legally deliver the beer to private citizens over town?" He says he could make $100 per month in delivering the goods.—Danville Advocate.

My Uncle.

(Dedicated to Mr. J. M. Mock by Mrs. Jennie Gamble.)
The years and loved ones too have flown
And left Dear Uncle a pilgrim alone
He lives a quiet, unpretentious life
Shriving naught, with either child or wife
Not a hermit, not a miser
Like the bachelors of whom you read
But a noble Christ-like pilgrim,
Righteous thoughts and righteous deeds.
Oh! so lonely to the stranger
May his little cottage seem
But a tree's bough in the forest
Winding road and flowing stream.
His friends have always been
As countless as the sands upon the shore
His character as spotless
As the feathers that the fairest dove ere bore
While he seems to live alone
And with no one aside
Yet the world is brighter, better
For his offering undied.
He's a worshiper at the temple
That bespeaks for love and God
He is treading in the pathway
That the old peoples trod.
He is climbing up life's mountain
And soon the summit he will find
Then the crown of life he'll wear
And his cross he'll leave behind
Not as a stranger, will then enter
May the peary gates above
But as a child of the Master
Welcome in with words of love.
Not a stranger will then greet you
As you tread the streets of gold
But you will once again
Your loved ones there behold.
Dear Uncle I will wait not Until the cold earth is your bed
Or the whispers of my kinsmen
To tell me you are dead.
Thy 'my effort is so feeble Yet I wish these lines to send
For you could not know I wrote them.
Yet in life we need a friend.
The writer of these lines once lived in Springfield and was a pupil at Covington Institute, afterward moving to Bardonia, finished her school at one of the foremost schools at that place. She is a second cousin to the beloved young ladies who so recently lost their lives in the waters of Big Beach.

Men Past Sixty In Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of the prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger as it corrects irregularities and has cured many cases of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years although I am now 91 years old." Sold by the Red Cross Drug Store.

Squire N. K. Yarbrough, of Beechwood, this county, was badly gored by a vicious bull at the home of a friend at Lexington last Saturday. He was visiting some of his people and in passing through a field he was attacked and dangerously hurt by the bull before he could call for help.

Among the fair sex of the county of Pendleton are a number of young women who have resolved not to receive attention from any young man who has not joined the American Society of Equity. This resolution was taken by them to aid the canvassers in their effort to secure an increase in the membership of the organization in their county.

Will Pool Wheat.

A large number of the farmers of this county met at the court house Monday for the purpose of taking concerted action toward securing what they claim would be fair prices for their 1907 wheat crop. Immediately after being called to order by Col. John B. Wathen, of the American Society of Equity, H. P. Cooper was elected chairman and H. W. Rives secretary of the meeting. A full discussion of the situation followed, and it was then by unanimous vote resolved to appoint a committee of five to take charge of the disposition of all wheat that might be committed to it. Farmers who have not as yet disposed of their crops were urged not to do so at the prices that are now offered, but to place it in the hands of the committee to be held until it can be disposed of more profitably. The committee is composed of H. P. Cooper, Irvine McElroy, J. B. Wathen, I. R. Durrett and E. E. Young. It was also suggested at the meeting that the committee might find it advisable to arrange for placing the wheat in a warehouse until a better price can be obtained for it, and another committee composed of H. P. Cooper, Walter Harrison and H. W. Rives, was appointed to draft a form of warehouse receipt for the storage of the product. Another meeting of all wheat growers of the county and others who are interested, will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock at the court house.—Lebanon Enterprise.

Texas Dry Law Victim.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 8.—George Brush, a teacher from Harrodsburg, was the worst surprised man in Texas Saturday night. Brush was a passenger on a train entering Palestine. Pulling a flask from his pocket, he was sampling a fine brand of whiskey, when he felt a touch on his shoulder. Believing some one was about to ask for a favor from the flask the words: "Consider yourself under arrest!" fairly staggered him. A State ranger had caught him in the act of violating the new law prohibiting drinking on trains. The prisoner was turned over to Sheriff Black and locked up in the county jail. This was the first arrest made in the State under the new law. Brush paid the fine of $10 a day and was released. He pleaded ignorance of the law and was let off.

Notice.

I have sold my dwelling property and have rented the store room now occupied by Heide's saloon. I will open at that place on August 15th with a different line of business. I therefore desire to sell my grocery business. We are doing from $9,000 to $12,000 worth of business a year and our trade practically all cash. It is a good opportunity for some one to engage in a profitable business and we will sell at a bargain. For further particulars call at Campbell's grocery.

HER LITTLE JOKE

"The love of a man for a woman when that woman happens to be his wife is seldom of long duration. It fades almost as soon as it is born, and it would be safe to say that 90 per cent of the modern husbands would complete the eloquence of their wives with other men as a trifling occurrence."

"These words occurred in the latest novel, called 'Man the Deceiver.'"
"I wonder if the authors is right,"
said Mrs. Jerny. "I wonder if husbands are really as indifferent as his representations. I don't think Herbert would take things very easily if he came home one evening and found his wife with a handsome man. Still, one never knows."

As she sat thinking a visitor was announced. It proved to be Mrs. Partridge, a frivolous young widow, who had been a school friend of Mrs. Jermy in days gone by.

"Ah, Grace, how are you? So glad you've come," cried pretty little Mrs.
Jerny, rising to greet her visitor.
"I've just been this afternoon, and this book I'm trying to get through has quite a sleepy tendency."

"Mrs. Partridge smiled.
"Most novels nowadays are written to replace narcotics, I think," she said.
"What is your special form of boredom in the direction of fiction
now?"

"That book which every one is running down and which every one is reading, 'Man the Deceiver.' There is one passage in it that has just struck me as being absolutely cynical. Listen."

She read out the lines to Mrs. Partridge, who listened carefully.
"It's true enough," said the young widow, "only too true."

"Oh, Grace, how can you? I'm sure there are just as many husbands who are really as indifferent as his representations would be indifferent. Why, Herbert, I know, would be quite distracted."

"Why don't you put him to the test?"
asked the other woman suddenly. "Only as a joke, of course."

"Whatever you mean?"
"Why, write out a note saying that you have left him forever, put it in a conspicuous place on the mantelpiece
and then retire behind the curtains and watch the effects of the note on him, who has never seen the contents."

Mrs. Jerny thought a moment.
"It would be good fun," she said.
"But it seems a shame, doesn't it?"

"Not at all. Now, if you hesitate in this matter I shall say that you are afraid to put Mr. Jerny to the test."

"To be sure of the result," related the young wife boldly. "How dare you say so? Well, just to show you that I am not afraid I will act on your suggestion. What's more, I'll do it at once."

"Barry" cried the other, clapping
her hands. "What fun!"
"Fun! What Herbert look like?
But I must be quick now if I'm going to play this trick. He'll be in the house and he'll reach home punctually at quarter past."

"She sat down at the writing table
and quickly penned the following:
"My Dear Herbert—I leave this little letter to you that I shall never see you again. I do not say to you to forgive me, but try to forget me as soon as possible your wife. I will not say you are going into the reasons for my flight, and I do not ask you to forgive me, but try to forget me as soon as possible."

MAUDE.
Mrs. Partridge on hearing the note read it up an uncontrollable fit of laughter.

"Upon my word, Maude," she said,
"you're quite a mistress of the art of letter writing. That letter is splendid.
It reads so genuine too. He's sure to be taken in by it. Now, then, put it in an envelope and direct it to him."

So the letter was accordingly inclosed
and directed to "Herbert Jerny, Esq.,
and left on the mantelpiece.
The sound of a latchkey in the door warned the two women that they must go to the door to see if the letter had been delivered. They opened the door and there waited for what was to come.

Herbert Jerny entered the room looking worn and tired. Business had gone away with him during the day.
He was jaded and haggard. Throughout the long and weary city hours
of his wife's face had haunted him,
and now he was disappointed on reaching home not to find her there.

"Where's Maude?" he muttered.
"She's usually waiting for me when I come home. Hello, what's that?"
His eye had caught sight of the letter on the mantelpiece. With a quick movement he took it down and tore open the envelope.

One hurried glance he gave, one cry
he uttered and then fell to the ground stone dead.

The doctor, hastily summoned, pronounced that Herbert Jerny had died from heart disease.

"Some violent shock has doubtless knocked him over," he said gravely.
"Do you know, Mrs. Jerny, of any recent shock he had been experiencing by your husband?"

And Mrs. Jerny could only stand motionless and weep. "That's the great secret," she said. "That was the end of the joke."

In the Opinion of the Parist.
"You wouldn't think to look at me," he said, with a good deal of pride, "that I had squandered four fortunes, would you?"

"No, candidly, I wouldn't. I should have guessed that your fortunes were taken from you by people who had played you for a sucker. But perhaps you do not draw these fine distinctions between words."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Wet and Not Wet.
Perhaps some of you may know the trick, but those of you that do not will find it hard to believe that you may plunge your hand into a bowl of water and take from the bottom a ring or other small object without getting your hand wet.

There is no magic in it, nor is it really a "trick." All you have to do is to sprinkle the surface of the water with some powder that has no attraction for the water—something that the water will not wet. Nothing better may be had than powdered pyrogallol, which you can get at any drug store.

Having thrown a handful of this powder on the surface of the water plunge your hand in, take up the ring and show the spectators that there is not a drop of moisture on your hand.

The reason is that the pyrogallol forms a sort of glove around your hand, to which water will not adhere any more than it will to the back of a duck. Water birds may dive time and again and come to the surface with their feathers as dry as if they had not been under the surface. The pyro-gallol gives the same quality to your hand.

Pup and Pup.
It has become the custom among ill-
bred people to apply the word "pup" or "puppy" as a term of reproach, but there is nothing in its derivation to warrant such a use. The word might apply to the term to all school children and not only an inoffensive but, perfectly legitimate way, for it is merely a contraction of the word "puppy" and its term, comes from the Latin puppyus, and means a little boy or a little girl. A dog is called a pup, perhaps, because it is a pup—Chicago News.
